JULIE EISENHOWER GREETES OLYMPIC TEAM

The U.S. Deaf Olympic Team, which has been training on the Gallaudet campus since the end of June, was honored by a visit from Julie Eisenhower on Monday afternoon prior to the Team's departure for Malmo, Sweden.

Following a welcome by Edward Merrill, Art Kruger, chairman of the 1973 World Games for the Deaf Committee, presented Mrs. Eisenhower with an official World Games' flight bag. Mrs. Eisenhower wished the U.S. squad success and shook hands with each of the 145 athletes and 40 officials.

The 1973 Games will be played in Malmo from July 21-28. Approximately 1,300 athletes representing 34 nations have registered for the Games and will compete in six sports for men and women -- track and field, volleyball, shooting, swimming, table tennis -- with the men also competing in basketball, football (soccer), handball, cycling, and wrestling.

At the conclusion of the Games, the American team will take a two week tour of Sweden, Norway, Scotland, and England before returning to the States.

GCAA ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Gallaudet College Alumni Association elected new officers at the 28th Triennial Reunion in Indianapolis. The newly elected officers are: president, Leo Jacobs, '38, (Calif.); vice president, Gertrude Galloway, '51, (Md.); secretary, Donald Peterson, G-'52, (Md.); and treasurer, Gerald Adler, '35, (D.C.)

New board members are: James N. Orman, '23, (Ill.); Julia Mayes, '44, (Md.); and John Gough, G-'52, (Pa.).

A decision was made at this meeting to go to a national ballot system for election of officers in the future.

MWAD SUMMER FILM FESTIVAL

Mohamed Khir Johari, the ambassador to the United States from Malaysia, visited the campus with two of his aides on Wednesday, July 11. Mr. Tan Yap from Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, who is taking several courses in the Graduate School this summer, extended the invitation to the ambassador.

A pharmacist by profession, Mr. Yap has established two schools for the deaf in Malaysia. His schools, which are operated solely by volunteer teachers, serve 49 students, who range in age from ten to 32.

The government of Malaysia does provide special classes for hearing impaired students, but a student must enroll prior to his eighth birthday. The two schools, which Mr. Yap opened in 1964, offer basic education courses and some vocational training to those students who were too old to be accepted by the government schools. Mr. Yap is using total communication in both of his schools.

After leaving Gallaudet this week, Mr. Yap will go to California State University at Northridge and enroll in a summer program there.

The ambassador, who has served as the Malaysian Minister of Education, was most interested in the College and the education of the deaf. We hope to have a group of wives of the Malaysian embassy officials visit Gallaudet this fall.

With a $15,000 first year grant from the C.S. Mott Foundation, Gallaudet has been designated a specialized Center in Community

The purpose of the center is to introduce the community education concept to schools for the hearing impaired throughout the United States. Pilot programs will be instituted at Kendall and MSSD. The program will then expand to other schools for the deaf in the Mid-Atlantic region and, later, to schools in other parts of the country.

Community education is a concept for bringing the community, the home, and the school more closely together. Continuing education and parent involvement are important factors in the community education process.

For deaf children the influences of home, school, and community often act in negative ways: (1) Parents lack an understanding of the problems of their handicapped children. (1) Parents lack an under-(residential schools, especially) are often cut off from the home and the mainstream of community life. (3) Communities, because they know so little about the handicapped, are indifferent to their problems and needs.

The $15,000 awarded to the College is the first part of a five-year grant for this new specialized Center for Community Education.

Frances Merrill, who was hospitalized last week for surgery, is home now and resting comfortably....Get your softball equipment ready! Gallaudet faculty and staff have been challenged to a game by the White House staffers on Tuesday, July 31 at 6:15 p.m. on our baseball field. Sorry gals, it's an all-male team, but get out there and cheer! Contact Cisco in the Bank if you have any questions....Both John Hall and Howard Roy, who retired this summer, will be back teaching this fall on a part-time basis.

REMEMBER, GIVE US YOUR NEWS!!!!
